

Regis Senior's Heroics With :07 Left Bring 16-14 Win

Marshall's First-Ever Field Goal Shocks Kennedy

By Bob Hersom
Regis placekicker Dave Marshall thought he wouldn't get a second chance. But he did. And all of a sudden Regis had found an unusual new way to win a football game.

escape from tough-luck Kennedy at Kingston stadium was the result of Marshall doing something a Regis player had never done before.

He kicked a game-winning goal.

With just seven seconds left in the game, Marshall booted a 20-yarder to give the unbeaten Royals their first lead in the game and Regis coach Tom Good his 102nd grid win at the east-side Catholic school.

Regis' victory hopes had been aided by a Kennedy off-side penalty which momentarily stopped the clock with :22 left. Regis had faced second-and-goal at the five yard-line with no times-out remaining.

Another vitally important play was Mike Williams' scrambling 17-yard pass to a

And he missed his first try—a 23-yarder which was several feet low and to the left late in the third quarter with Kennedy leading 14-13.

"This was the first field goal I ever kicked in my life. I was surprised," admitted Marshall. "After I missed the first one I thought I'd never get another chance. But Mr. Good let me try it and, well, I was lucky."

Regis coach Tom Good, whose class AAA Royals have beaten four AAAA teams in their first five games, matter-of-factly said, "We seldom even kicked extra-points at Regis until Dave arrived. We never had a good kicker before and always ran for the extra-points."

A disheartened Jerry Mauren, Kennedy coach who doesn't seem to have any luck at all unless it's bad, watched his Cougars lose their third straight game—by a grand total of 12 points, and second straight two-point setback.

Mauren was disappointed that the Cougars, who had outgained Regis 89-17 in the first quarter and 163-110 at halftime, couldn't develop a scoring threat in the second half.

"In the second half we needed to muster a scoring drive and couldn't," said Mauren. "That was the whole story."

The Cougars were limited to 20 yards in the final half.

Earlier, Kennedy had

And after a fourth-down Regis gamble failed, Kennedy scored again, marching 67 yards in 16 plays, including 14 and 22 yard first-down scampers by speedy sophomore Tracy Crocker. Dennis Baskerville, who led Cougar runners with 94 yards in 27 carries, tallied from two yards out.

the kick and Kennedy led 14-0 with 3:29 left in the half.

Regis then scored on consecutive possessions. Back-to-back inside reverses by Kevin Kregel netted 40 yards as Regis drove 61 yards in six plays. Fullback Martin, a junior who seems to thrive on running with tacklers on his back, did just that to score from three yards out and Marshall added the kick 1:42 before halftime.

With Martin carrying for all five first downs, Regis took the second-half kickoff and rammed 76 yards in a dozen running plays to make the score 14-13. Kregel, who finished with 84 yards in 15 carries, tallied from two yards out.

A vital ingredient to Regis' success was Martin's running which accounted for 169 yards in 23 rushes. He ran for 12 of the Royals' 17 first downs.

Dave Marshall boots first game-winning field goal in Regis history (left) to give Royals 16-14 win over Kennedy, then has an "I don't believe it" expression following his heroics.

It is remarkable enough that Regis constructed its glorious gridiron tradition with nary a game-winning field goal. But consider, too, that Royal hero Marshall had never attempted a field goal until Thursday night!

USC Even Brings Its Climate

By Gus Schrader

The promise of beautiful Indian Summer weather for Saturday's Iowa-Southern California football game should insure another big crowd and be pleasing to everyone.

Right? Wrong!

Coach Bob Cummings groaned when he heard the weather forecast for Saturday was sunny with warm temperatures in the 80s.

"Nuts!" said the Hawkeye coach. "Southern Cal has all the advantages for this game, and now we even will let them play the game in THEIR kind of weather."

Cummings hinted he really was hoping for lousy weather—maybe a dark, overcast day with even a cold rain. That wouldn't appeal to the 53,000 fans who are expected to attend—or anyone with streaking plans—but it might make the California prune-pickers wish they were back in Smogland.

But the Trojans are likely to feel so much at home they probably will be looking around for that crazy guy who gallops the white horse around Los Angeles coliseum every time they score back home.

The odds-makers say USC, ranked third nationally, will win big, making Iowa at least glad the non-conference part of its schedule is over.

One of the reasons is Ricky Bell, a 6-2, 215-pound junior who gained 256 yards in 34 carries and scored four TDs in USC's 35-7 romp over Duke standably worked up about Danny Reece. He leads the nation in punt returns with an average of 34.2 on five.

Against Purdue he had returns of 47, 68, 38 and 13.

Reece only moonlights as a punt returner. He plays left corner on defense and intercepted 14 passes in his first two seasons at USC.

Unless Iowa's passing attack has improved, Reece will spend more time tackling runners and returning punts Saturday than guarding against passes. In two home games so far the Hawks have completed only one of 25 passes. They're 7 for 37 on the season.

Cummings is expected to start Tom McLaughlin at QB again, but Butch Caldwell will see action again. The only advertised lineup change will send Iowa City's Mark Phillips back to defensive left end, as Dean Moore is out for the season after suffering a knee injury against Penn State in his second game as a starter.

The Hawks lost to USC last year in L.A. 41-3, a wild game in which Iowa ran 91 plays and outgained the Trojans 362 to 232. But USC scored on fumble run-backs of 98 and 83 yards by Charlie Phillips (are you sure he's gone?) and on an 80-yard kickoff return by Anthony Davis (yes, he's gone, too).

Get this: USC has won eight straight games since a 15-15 tie with Cal last year. It has won two national championships in the last three years and played in seven of the last nine Rose Bowls. And the Trojans have played 85 straight games without being shut out.

P.S.—Begin to see why Bob Cummings was hoping for maybe a blizzard?

• A little more respect, please, as your old Swami picked 25 right last week with only 6 wrong and the weekly Michigan tie. This makes our season record 62-27-2 for .692. Just shows what we can do when the form chart doesn't blow out the window. We've sworn off picking upsets. Almost.

Big Ten

Iowa 17, USC 14 (those sugar cubes tasted funny)
Illinois 23, Wash. State 19 (C'mon, Big 10, get hot)
N.C. State 28, Indiana 14 (willing to be surprised)
Missouri 19, Michigan 14 (clean Big 10 sweep for Mizzou)
Mich. State 27, Notre Dame 21 (who swore off upsets?)
Ohio U. 20, Minnesota 19 (schedule those patsies, huh?)
Arizona 23, Northwestern 7 (blooming in the desert air)
Ohio State 26, UCLA 17 (good night-time TV fare)
Miami, O. 14, Purdue 7 (can't trust Mid-American)
Wisconsin 34, Kansas 10 (aha, end of Big 8 humiliations)

Big Eight

Iowa State 33, Utah 7 (massacre on Salt Flats)
Nebraska 27, Miami, Fla. 14 (makes Sooner look bad)
Oklahoma 23, Colorado 14 (makes Buffaloes look bad)
Okla. State 29, Texas Tech 13 (2 Okie teams unbeaten)
Texas A&M 17, Kan. State 6 (who's telling Apple jokes?)

Pass the Hash

• To hear all the comments, you'd think Iowans never saw a streaker before the male nude (well, practically) raced the length of Kinnick stadium before the Iowa-Penn State football game.

Come to think of it, it was the first one we'd ever seen, although the fad was popular a couple of years ago. We've been asked questions by amused fans all week. Such as:

Q—Is it true the streaker actually had on flesh-colored shorts or tights? A—If it is, then Gazette photos must use magic cameras. They shot unpublshable pix that prove otherwise.

Q—Did stadium police try to catch him? A—We saw a couple half-heartedly hunting at the spot where he disappeared under the south stands. Best guess is he had a confederate waiting with his clothes, although someone said he had a pair of shorts wadded up under his cap.

Q—Is it true students took up a collection to tempt him to do it? A—First rumor we heard was people passed the hat and offered him $300. Another rumor said it was $1,000, and then the thing mushroomed to a supposed figure to $1,300, but we would discount all but the first.

• Never underestimate the power of a meat sandwich. The U. of Minnesota, faced with football attendance problems in its ancient Memorial stadium, has adopted several schemes that offer something free to fans. For Saturday's game against Ohio U. the first 10,000 in the park will get a roast beef sandwich, thanks to the St. Paul Union stockyards.

Iowa hasn't had to resort to such promotions, but the Hawkeyes are getting a hand from the pork producers. At the Illinois game, pressbox workers lunched on roast-pork sandwiches, and at the Penn State game the pressbox sandwich filling was ham from the Scott County Pork Producers and Porkettes.

Maybe if someone would offer a free rasher of bacon every housewife in Iowa would buy a ticket!

• The Iowa football coaches were delighted with the quarterbacking of Jerry Runta in the recent varsity-reserve win over Illinois. Coach Bob Cummings said Jerry, soph who played for Don Dobrino at Gillespie, Ill., played despite a nagging back injury.

Bill Whisler, who coaches the VR team, told the Hawks they would have to protect their QB at all costs, as he was the only man they had who could handle that position well. On the very first play, Runta was surprised when assistant coach Rob Fick sent in a "quarterback bootleg" play requiring Runta to carry the ball.

"Then Runta realized why Fick did it," said Cummings. "He figured Runta had to prove it to himself he could take it, and after that everything went fine."

In the same game Iowa uncovered a short but talented wide receiver. He is Mike Brady, a walk-on from California who reportedly broke the pass-receiving records set by John McKay (son of the USC coach) in high school.

• Southern California, which has won two of the last three national championships, has a sports information director (Jim Perry) who described USC's 19-6 win over Purdue as an "inartistic victory."

Gollie, wouldn't ol' Iowa just love to have a few inartistic victories instead of all those artistic defeats? And while we're at it, how about a few immoral wins instead of those "moral victories?"

Washington and Jefferson tangle for the 19th time in football at 8 p.m. Friday in Kingston stadium in the highlight of a weekend of prep football action for Metro schools. Washington shares the Mississippi Valley conference lead with a 3-0 league mark.

Three other games are on tap Friday involving Metro area teams. Linn-Mar hosts Oskaaloosa in a bid to keep its unbeaten string and a high state ranking. Marion travels to West Delaware of Manchester in an important Wamac conference test, while Prairie will try to break into the win column when it tackles Beckman and Dyersville.

Saturday, Iowa City Regina faces LaSalle in another ECI test at 7:45 p.m. at Kingston
