Long shot

Statistics, they say, are like a bikini: what they reveal is interesting, but what they conceal is vital. For instance, this week Iowa ranks dead last in Big Ten passing, averaging only 120.2 yards per game. Yet Iowa's Chuck Long leads the league in passing efficiency and has completed a hot 71.11 pct. Incidentally, the Big Ten record for passing percentage in one season is 68.2 percent, set by Purdue's Mark Herrmann in 1980. That was for conference games only, of course. Long's 71.11 percent includes all four games so far, but he was 9 for 11 in his only league contest.

The Big Ten record for best completion percentage in one game (10 or more attempts) is held by Purdue's Dale Samuels. He hit 12 of 14 against Illinois in 1952.

Forsch persisted

Long-time Cedar Rapids pro baseball fans got a thrill out of seeing Bob Forsch pitch the Cardinals to their 7-0 win over Atlanta in the National League playoff opener. Bob was drafted by the parent Cardinals — as an infielder — in the 38th round in 1968. He was very persistent, however, even though he batted .224 at Sarasota in 1968, .203 at Lewiston in 1969 and .235 at Modesto, also in 1969.

In 1970 the Cards sent him back to Modesto but he hit only .149 before they packed him off to Cedar Rapids. His average skidded to .088 here. He switched to pitching. His start wasn't impressive, either, as he hurled in one game and was shelved for six hits and four earned runs in three innings.

Back to Lewiston, he had a 2-3 record, winning a promotion to Cedar Rapids in 1971. Then his pitching career really took off. He finished 11-7 here and four years later he made the bigs.

While here, Bob met a Cedar Rapids teacher he later married. The TV cameras showed her in the stands as he stopped the Braves on three singles. He also cracked two singles and a sacrifice fly.

Pass the hash

Omigosh, Illinois leads the Big Ten with a 3-0 conference record after routing Minnesota 42-24 with 22 unanswered points in the fourth quarter.

That doesn't make the rest of the league look very good, because those are the same Illini who couldn't even score a TD against Pitt (20-3) on their home lot! Small wonder the Big Ten is 8-14 for its worst non-league mark except for 9-17 in 1971.

Illinois certainly has played some games in which the momentum has swung wildly. Last year the Illini went ahead of Michigan 21-7, scoring the first three times they had the ball, and were driving for another score when the tide turned. Boom! Michigan scored the next nine TDs and won 70-21.

Bill Happel, defensive back-field coach of the Minnesota Gophers, got to see his son, Bob, quarterback Cedar Rapids Washington to victory over Jeff Thursday night without missing a Gopher practice.

Bill caught the 6:30 p.m. Mid-Continent flight out of the Twin Cities, saw the game, visited with both sons and flew back to Minneapolis Friday morning. His older son, Billy, didn't make the trip with Iowa to Indiana because of a shoulder injury, but he hopes to resume practice Monday.

You folks who don't go out to Kingston Stadium for local high school games are missing a lot of fine entertainment — not all of it in football. The Wash and Jeff bands both were impressive with their halftime routines Thursday night. That was worth the admission price alone, even without the game.

Punchy Fisteras came in. Attempting to get his mind off football, we asked if he has been watching the baseball playoffs.

"Sure have," he replied. "In fact, I'm crazy about the way they show the games during the 6-and-10 p.m. TV newscasts."

"How's that?"
"The batters always hit the first ball pitched, which gets the games over in a minute or two so there's more time for football."

Kennedy dunked 7-0 by Hempstead

By Mark Dukes
Gazette sportswriter

Prep football's version of the trickle down theory went swimmingly Friday night, but it proved little more than which team had a better 10-yard freestyle relay.

Dubuque Hempstead's Mustangs, arguably the No. 1-ranked mudders in the state, dunked Cedar Rapids Kennedy with a 7-0 overtime triumph under conditions fit only for ducks and pigs.

Taking note of a driving rain that turned the Kingston Stadium field into a quagmire, Kennedy Coach Greg Reed said he thought the Mississippi Valley Conference contest could have been postponed until this afternoon.

"It was ridiculous to have to play a football game in that kind of weather," Reed said. "It proved nothing. Sure, we wanted to throw the football, but how could you?"

Kennedy was No. 1 in conference passing yards and had the league's top receiver (Rick Fry) and top passer (Brad Sleep). But the footing was hardly conducive to passing.

Reed apparently wasn't singing the song of a sore loser, either.

"I told our coaching staff during the timeout before the overtime that this game doesn't prove anything — regardless of who wins or loses."

Brett Bordewick's four-yard run on third down in the overtime, plus Dennis Debolt's conversion kick, was the only scoring. Kennedy had four downs from the 10-yard line, but suffered an incompleting, one rushing loss and two quarterback sacks. Sleep's pass into the end zone on second down just eluded Steve Schenatzki's grasp.

The outcome left Hempstead with a 4-2 overall record and 3-1 in the Valley, while Kennedy slipped to 2-4 and 2-3.

Hempstead Coach Bob Timmerman indicated his teams are at their best under the most adverse conditions.

"Our motto is 'Pain is good, but rain is better,'" he said. "We like it best when it's wet."

Hempstead gained all of its 112 yards on the ground, while Kennedy managed just 44 rushing yards and 43 passing. Each team punted eight times and had five fumbles.

Kennedy had the best scoring chances in regulation time, taking possession three times inside the Hempstead 20-yard line in the third quarter.

Mustang back Doug Dunham fumbled on the first scrimmage play of the second half and Jeff Blake recovered at the Hempstead 27. Three runs by Tim Batten for 11 yards and two rushes by John Smith for eight gave Kennedy a fourth-and-three at the Hempstead eight.

But Kevin Mote's 26-yard field goal try barely missed to the right.

Even so, Hempstead quarterback Joe Paulsen fumbled the center snap on the next play and Kennedy's Paul Scott recovered at the Mustang 19. However, the Cougars' Craig Cone fumbled after a four-yard pass reception and Hempstead's Mark Larue recovered.

Fry's 35-yard punt return gave Kennedy another excellent chance at the Hempstead 19 moments later. But on the third play, Sleep's

Linn-Mar sails past Benton

By Bob Denney
Gazette sportswriter

VAN HORNE — Homecoming went aground Friday night at Bobcat Lake. Only Linn-Mar's Lions swam home happy.

The unbeaten Lions struck for two quick touchdowns in the opening four minutes, taking advantage of Benton Community turnovers, before coasting home to a 26-8 rain-plagued East Central Iowa Conference football victory.

The Lions boosted their season mark to 6-0 and 3-0 in the ECIC, setting up next week's league showdown against Cedar Rapids LaSalle, also 3-0 in the conference. Benton's Bobcats, suffering from five interceptions, two fumbles and drive-stopping penalties, fell to 1-5 and 0-3 in the conference.

Linn-Mar, ranked No. 2 by AP and No. 3 by UPI, hoisted its sail early before the playing field became "Cape Van Horne." The Lions' Kevin Buisman and Scott Underwood each made interceptions deep within Bobcat territory to set up two touchdowns in the first four minutes.

Buisman nabbed Benton starting quarterback Steve Rohlena's pass at the 31-yard line and returned seven yards to the 24. Three plays later, Lions' quarterback Bob Busch raced 20 yards to score. Two minutes later, Underwood intercepted No. 2 Benton quarterback Mike Garber's pass at the 11-yard line. In another three-play series, Underwood circled left end nine yards to score. Ron Rittgers booted both extra points.

"In a game like this, with the rain, I was very pleased with our kicking game," said Lions' Coach Greg Purnell. "We have six wins now heading into the toughest part of our schedule."

Indeed, the Lions' kicking game shined brightly in the rain. Punter Gary Dvorak twice booted 46 yards out of trouble.

"You have to concentrate more when it rains. I like to think I punt the best in the rain."

The Lions were methodical the first 24 minutes, accumulating 93 yards to Benton's 26, not allowing the Bobcats to cross the Linn-Mar 40-yard line.

By halftime, the field became a quagmire forcing homecoming fans and queens to depart. The Bobcats came out the second half to finish

Sutton stays calm, keeps Brewers alive

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers right-hander Don Sutton, who claims he doesn't feel any pressure pitching in big games, wasn't even rattled Friday by a home run that might not have been a home run.

Sutton blanked hard-hitting California through seven innings, but Angel catcher Bob Boone led off the eighth with a deep fly ball that left fielder Ben Oglivie tried to catch at the wall.

Umpire Larry Barnett ruled it was a home run, but Oglivie contended that a fan sitting in the bleachers reached over and took the catch away from him.

The disputed homer sparked a three-run California rally and Sutton was lifted after giving up a run-scoring double to Don Baylor. Pete Ladd, an unheralded rookie, then came on to preserve the 5-3 victory and save the Brewers from extinction in the best-of-five playoff series.

Sutton, who last Sunday beat the Baltimore Orioles to give the Brewers the American League Eastern Division title on the final day of the season, said he was unaffected by Boone's tainted homer.

"I think that the cause of the next two pitches not going where I wanted is the fact that I'm 37 and I've pitched over 4,000 innings and I was running out of gas," said Sutton, acquired in a late-season deal with the Houston Astros.

Asked if he had ever given up a home run like that, Sutton quipped: "When you've given up as many home runs as I have, it's hard to remember them all."

Paul Molitor's two-run homer in the seventh, seemingly no more than insurance runs for Milwaukee at the time, turned out to be the winning hit. And Molitor, while acknowledging the Brewers' batting slump of late, said he never doubted they could still score runs.

"There was really no difference (in Milwaukee Friday)," Molitor said. "We scored five runs, but it's still below our season average (5.5 runs per game). We are capable of scoring more runs."

Molitor also said he and his teammates knew just what they were up against in Game Three. Trailing 2-0 in the series, they hardly needed a pep talk.

"I think we have enough class and professional people that we don't have to have anybody tell us what our jobs are," said the Brewer third baseman. "We had it staring us in the face."

Ladd again assumed the short relief role in the absence of bullpen ace Rollie Fingers. Fingers, last year's MVP and Cy Young Award winner, has not pitched since Sept. 2 because of a torn muscle in his right forearm.

Ladd came on in the eighth with two outs and Baylor on second and ended the inning by getting Doug DeCinces to ground out to Molitor at third. Ladd retired the Angels in order in the ninth, striking out

The Hawkeyes currently have 34 different players nursing some sort of injury, according to Coach Hayden Fry. Most of them are expected to play, though. It will be homecoming for the Hoosiers, who haven't beaten Iowa since Fry's first game as the Hawk coach.

Pointers

Rivers Conference rival Center Point.

It was the first time since Starmont joined the Tri-Rivers Conference eight years ago that the Stars have topped the Pointers.

Gallagher, a senior, fired an 11-yard scoring toss to tight end Scott Sage with 8:50 to play in the third period to break a scoreless tie. Kicker Ron Timp booted the extra point to give the Stars, now 6-0 overall and 5-0 in league play, a never-headed, 7-0 advantage.

Allen, a sophomore, added his two-yard touchdown bolt, which closed out the scoring in the defensive battle, less than four minutes later to cap a five-play drive that started at the Center Point 21.

Starmont, under the direction of head coach Dave Barclay, has outscored its opponents, 201-6, this season and has now won 24 of its last 27 contests.

Gallagher, who directed both of the Stars' scoring drives, completed eight of 13 passes for 80 yards and was not intercepted.

His counterpart from Center Point, senior Doug Meyer, connected on five of 14 tosses for 49 yards but was intercepted twice.

The Pointer defense played about as well as Coach Ted Rogers could ask, holding the Stars to zero first downs in the opening half. But Center Point, which dropped to 4-2 overall and 4-1 in conference action, finally wore out and Starmont prevailed.

Starmont also played exceptionally well on defense.

Led by junior defensive back Tony Seedorf and end Nick Slater, the Stars stopped Center Point on a fourth and goal at the one in the second period. Seedorf, who was credited with a touchdown-saving tackle on the crucial fourth down play, later picked off a Meyer pass that halted another Pointer drive just before the half.

Neither club could mount much on the ground, as Center Point finished with 136 yards compared to Starmont's 98 yard total.

Sage's touchdown catch capped a nine-play scoring march that followed the second half kickoff. Starmont had started on its own 35-yard line.

Marion rolls

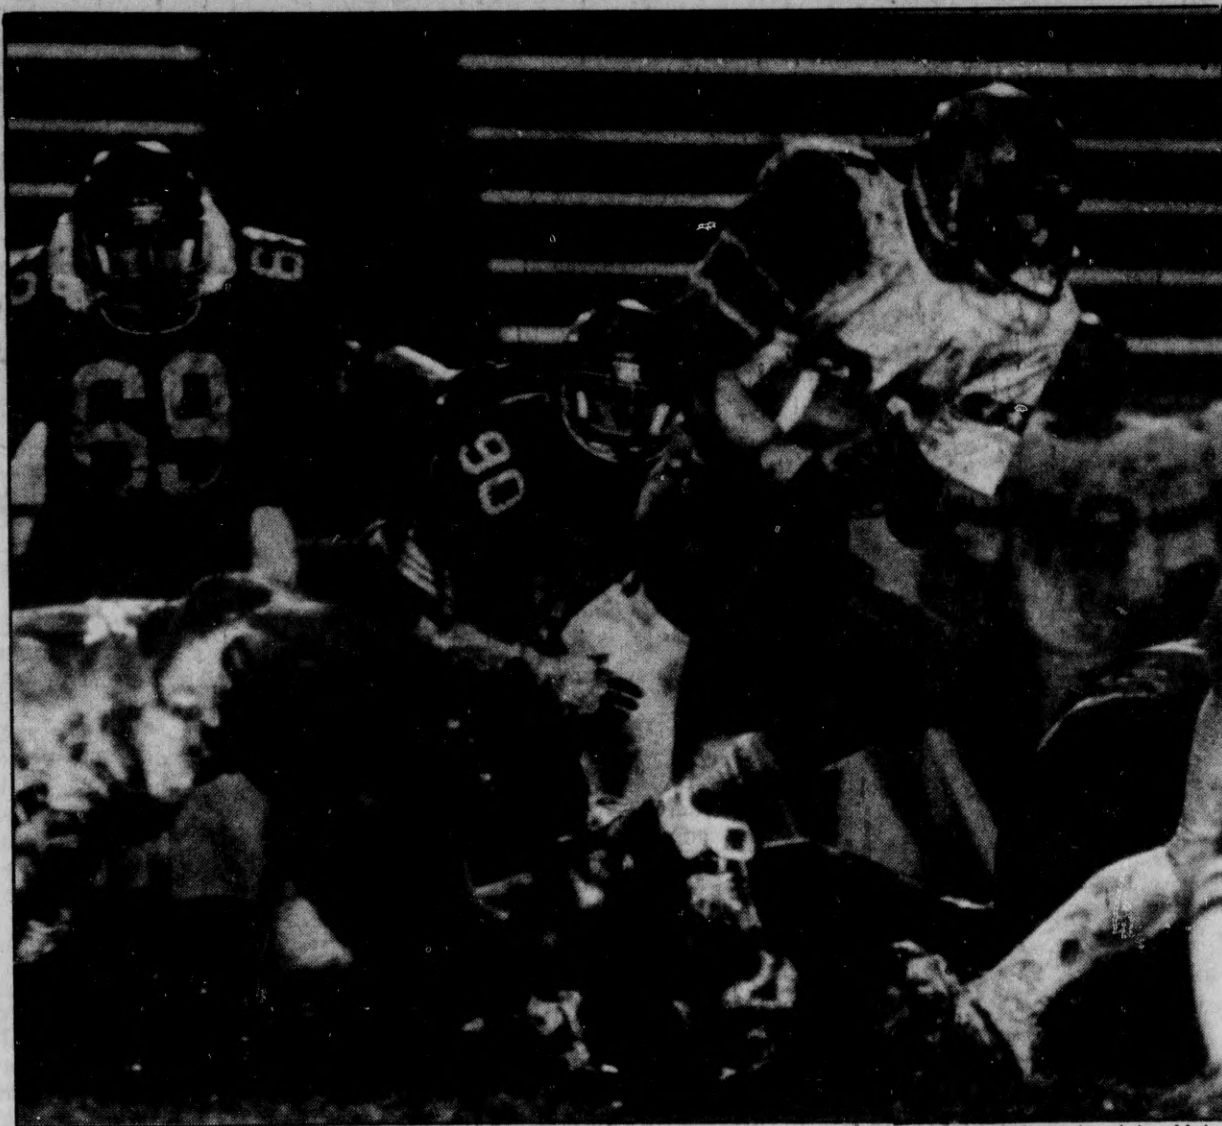

MAQUOKETA — Marion stormed to a 22-0 halftime lead and sailed to a 30-0 Wamac Conference victory over Maquoketa Friday night.

Todd Twachtman rushed for two touchdowns and 116 yards for the Indians, now 4-0 in the Wamac and 5-1 total.

Steve Panek passed for another 90 yards, including a touchdown throw to Jeff Wisehart. Panek ran for Marion's other TD.

"We played a very good defensive game," Marion Coach Dave Messerli said. "We're very happy with the win over a good football team."

Marion plays at Anamosa next Friday in a key Wamac clash. Maquoketa, considered a contender in the pre-season, fell to 1-3 in the league, 2-4 on the year.

Rozelle: Resume NFL season in 2 weeks or cancel for 1982

By Bart Barnes

(c) 1982. The Washington Post

National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Friday the NFL will seriously consider canceling the season if the NFL Players Association strike is not settled and the players back in training facilities by Oct. 25 or 26.

In a telephone conversation from his office in New York, Rozelle also said that some team owners say they would rather cancel the season than agree to the players' proposed wage scale, the central issue in the deadlocked negotiations.

"They will not accept terms they can't live with, and they say they can't live with the wage scale," Rozelle said.

Ed Garvey, the NFLPA executive director who has charged the NFL negotiators with violating federal labor laws by refusing to bargain on the issue of a wage scale, said, "It's unbelievable that they continue to make our case for us before the National Labor Relations Board. I've never seen a more clear-cut case of violating the labor laws."

Garvey also vehemently denied a report that there had been behind-the-scenes maneuvering to settle the impasse, perhaps in time to resume play next weekend.

"There's been no progress whatsoever," he said.

In another development, the NFLPA announced establishment of a loan program in connection with several regional lending institutions to enable striking players to borrow up to $20,000 each to meet household expenses and monthly payments during the strike.

There was also a report that President Ronald Reagan may soon become involved in the strike that now has lasted 18 days.

Meanwhile, Dave Sheridan, an NFLPA spokesman, said many player representatives have been warned by management that the season will be called off if the strike is prolonged. "We've heard that before and we don't believe it for one minute. That's a lot of money to be throwing down the drain."

Clarence-Lowden shuts out Lincoln

By Bob Hilton

Gazette sports reporter

STANWOOD — It isn't the game Larry Atwater likes, but it has taken his Clarence-Lowden team from the bottom to the top in Mid-East Iowa Conference football.

With 200-pound junior fullback Dave Eckert bullying for 100 yards and two second-half touchdowns on 28 carries, the Rebels used their ball-control offense, Lincoln Community errors and a torrential second-half rain to spoil the Lions' homecoming, 14-0 Friday night.

That set up Clarence-Lowden — an 0-9 team last year — for a title showdown next Friday against invading Lisbon.

Both are 4-1 in Mid-East Iowa play, 5-1 for the season. Lincoln dropped to 3-2 and 3-3.

"The game went just the way we wanted it to go," Atwater said after ducking out of the downpour. "You know how much I'd like to pass, but ball-control is our game."

"The rain hurt Lincoln, no question. Jackson (Lincoln's clever 150-pound junior quarterback, Scott Jackson) is a very good passer." While the weather obviously handicapped the Lions, so did their mistakes. They committed 11 procedure and encroachment violations, and lost two of three fumbles.

"I thought we'd cured the mistakes, but we hadn't," Lincoln Coach Steve Richardson acknowledged when he emerged from lecturing his players on that subject.

"Yes, the rain hurt us, too. But take nothing away from Clarence-Lowden. They're one of the best teams we've played this season."

They play very well, they're well-coached. They deserved to win."

The Rebels consumed most of the first period on a drive that began on their own 15 after the opening kickoff and ended 17 plays later with Jackson's last-second knock-down of a Shawn Stolte 4th-and-14 pass from the Lions' 19.

A delay-of-game penalty had forced the Rebels to take to the air.

Much of the second quarter ticked away while Clarence-Lowden attempted to exploit Lincoln's botched punt attempt. That put the Rebels on the Lions' 44.

They got to the 13 in eight plays, but wound up punting from the 33 after another delay penalty and a 14-yard sack of Stolte.

On the fourth play of that abortive thrust, an Eckert pass bamboozled Lincoln's defenses and seemed certain to produce a touchdown, but the ball went through the receiver's hands.

"Yes, I was frustrated when we got down deep and couldn't get it in," Atwater confessed. "But I checked myself — I told myself if the kids see me lose it, they're going to get rattled, too."

As intermission approached, Jackson ushered Lincoln 69 yards to the Rebels 11 — he ran 13 plays in 128 seconds — but a procedure penalty thwarted the threat.

Three plays into the second half, Clarence-Lowden tackle Larry Elijah recovered a Lincoln fumble on the Lions' 35. Eckert carried six times for 30 and went the last five with 6:51 left in the period.

LaSalle, Prairie ready for key ECIC contest

LaSalle and Prairie square off tonight at 7:30 at Kingston Stadium in what could prove to be a pivotal game in the East Central Iowa Conference prep football race.

LaSalle is 4-1 overall and 3-0 in the conference. Prairie, the defending ECIC and Class 3A state champion, has won only one of its five games but is 1-1 in the league.

"Prairie is a lot better than their record indicates," LaSalle Coach Tom Kopatich said. "With only one loss, they still have hope in the conference. Their defense has really been tough, but mistakes have cost them."

Kopatich complained about turnovers and penalties by his team, too, adding, "We really haven't set the world on fire yet. If we start playing as good as we can, I'd start feeling better."

LaSalle has won three straight since a 20-7 loss to No. 1-ranked Regis. The Lancers have outscored their three ECIC victims by a combined total of 56-6, including shutouts over Dyersville Beckman and Benton Community.

Prairie's two conference games were decided by 20-14 scores, as the Hawks defeated Benton and lost to Beckman. The Hawks are averaging just 8.8 points per game, though.

Quarterback Mark Steffen and running back Andy McEowen are LaSalle's top scorers with four TDs each. Jon Shebetka has scored three TDs for Prairie.

Both quarterbacks, Steffen and Prairie's Bill Shebetka, have thrown for two TDs and are 1-2, respectively, in ECIC passing yards.

pinch-hitter Rob Wilfong and Boone to end the game.

Ladd has retired seven batters in two playoff appearances, fanning five of them, ala Fingers. Ladd said Friday's game-saving performance helped ease the memory of two games he lost last month when he gave up late-inning home runs.

"Definitely," he said, "because fortunately those games are gone and we're in the playoffs."

When asked if he liked fulfilling Fingers' role, Ladd answered, "It feels good as long as we win."

Ladd said he was helped Friday by his successful outing in Game Two when he struck out the side in a one-inning stint on the West Coast.

"I think so because I got my feet wet early in the series," he said. "I can go in now and not be so nervous as a — quote — rookie is."

Tommy John will start game four today for the Angels (noon, ABC-TV). Moose Haas will pitch for the Brewers.

John said he works better with only three days rest. Haas' last start was Sept. 13.

Haas' only appearance against the Angels this season was a 4-1, six-hit, six-strikeout victory May 21.

Angels second baseman Bobby Grich, who struck out three straight times against Brewer starter and winner Don Sutton, said the right-hander was throwing one of the best breaking balls he's seen all season.

"He was just outstanding today with his slider and cut fastball," Grich said.

"I can't remember at any time this season having a better slider," said Sutton, who was picked up from the Houston Astros on Aug. 30, the day before the deadline for being eligible for the playoffs. "In most key situations, I threw my slider."

Sutton, however, said he was tired late in the game. "It could be four or five days before I can pitch effectively again," he said.

Players on both teams said they had trouble seeing pitches because of the shadows that crossed the field.

"Sutton pitched an outstanding game; it's what he's done forever," Angels catcher Boone said. "It helped him when he got a little twilight in the last four or five innings, which made the ball really tough to see."

Molitor said the shadows made it difficult to see, but he said, "I think it's more mental than physical."

"We played in the shade," Grich lamented. "Why not put the lights on? We play the whole season at night...let's get some light on the field."

HEY, GIVE THAT BACK — A fan in the left field stands reaches out over Milwaukee outfielder Ben Oglivie to grab a ball hit by California Angel Bob Boone in the eighth inning Friday at Milwaukee. Umpire Larry Barnett ruled the ball a home run despite the Brewers' argument that the ball was caught below the home run line on the fence. Milwaukee won anyway, 5-3.

Rainy NL playoff games might delay World Series

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Friday night's second rainout in the National League Championship Series between the Atlanta Braves and St. Louis Cardinals could delay the start of the 1982 World Series.

If the playoff between the Braves and Cards stretches to the five-game limit, the start of the Series would be delayed until Wednesday night and it could result in the NL champions playing six straight days in three cities before getting a day off.

Here's how that could happen. Game Two of the NL series now is scheduled for tonight in St. Louis. The playoff moves to Atlanta for Game Three Sunday and, if necessary, Games Four and Five Monday and Tuesday.

That would push the World Series start back to Wednesday night in the NL city. The second game then would be played Thursday night, previously a travel day, with the teams taking Friday off to move to the American League city.

Baseball is not considering battling the weather by doubling up with two playoff games in one day, according to NL President Chub Feeney.

"There is no thought of that," he said. "I suppose around Thanksgiving, we might consider it."

The rainout enabled Atlanta Manager Joe Torre to bring back the ace of his staff, 43-year-old Phil Niekro, for Game Two. Niekro was the Braves' starter in the opener on Wednesday, which was rained out in the fifth inning. St. Louis won the rescheduled opener 7-0 on the three-hit pitching of Bob Forsch.

Torre had considered bringing Niekro back Friday night with just one day of rest but decided to start Tommy Boggs instead. But the rainout changed that and Boggs will be in the bullpen with Niekro on the mound.

"I wanted to give Niekro two days rest and with the rainout, we've accomplished that," the Atlanta manager said.

St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said he would stay with rookie John Stuper for Game Two and bring back Joaquin Andujar — his pitcher in the rain-shortened Wednesday opener — on Sunday in Atlanta.

"That's if we play tomorrow (Saturday) night," he said.

Niekro was happy with the development. "You're always excited about pitching," he said. "I hear there's a lot of rain in Atlanta. Maybe I can pitch three or four times in this series."

Torre said he planned to use Rick Camp as his next starter after Niekro.

Kennedy

pass was intercepted at the 10 by Gary Hartford.

Hempstead's most serious threat during regulation time was in the first quarter. The Mustangs earned three of their four first downs behind the running of Kevin Bierman, who carried 12 times for 54 yards in the first half before injuring an ankle.

But Kennedy's Ron Rathjens and Tim Woods stopped Bierman for a two-yard loss on fourth-and-two at the Cougar 24. Hempstead never advanced past Kennedy's 39 after that.

only a yard behind Linn-Mar in total offense, 165-164, but again made costly mistakes.

"It was a David and Goliath out there tonight," said Bobcats Coach Reese Morgan. "We had a noseman 135 pounds and another tackle 135 pounds. But, Linn-Mar played exceptionally well. They're a very balanced team, with an offensive line that just flies off the ball well. If anything, we can take pride in the fact we're the first team that didn't allow them to drive the length of the field on. Our penalties just killed us early."

Benton quarterbacks Rohlena and Garbers teamed for 88 total yards, but not before Linn-Mar linebacker Greg Nielson intercepted a Rohlena pass at the 15-yard line with 6:50 to go in the third quarter. Nielson, who also stars at fullback, carried the final eight yards to make it 20-0.

Rohlena fumbled the snap on Benton's next series, Nielson recovered the ball on the 25-yard line, and three plays later Busch plowed the final yard with 5:02 remaining in the period.

The Bobcats scored their only touchdown with 1:01 left to play. Thanks to a 25-yard run by Darin Pickart and a facemask penalty, Benton's Dave Bell was able to plow the final three yards and add a two-point conversion. The Bobcats' Rob Stewart recovered the ensuing on-side kick, but three consecutive pass incompletions by Garbers halted the drive at the 13-yard line as time ran out.
