DOWN AND OUT — Minnesota Twins third baseman Gary Gaetti hangs his head as he leaves the dugout in Cleveland Stadium Friday night after the Twins lost to the Cleveland Indians 11-10. The Twins blew a 10-0 lead and were eliminated from the American League Western Division race when Kansas City nipped Oakland 6-5 to clinch the title.

"We could tell Senior's defense was getting anxious," Calloway said. "We noticed the safety crowding up to the line of scrimmage so we knew we could split the post with Lockett."

Senior Coach Roger Bentley thought the pass play was the most damaging to his team.

"It was a breakdown because we lacked concentration," Bentley said. "We over-reacted to the play action and the receiver could have walked

Two minutes after Lockett's touchdown, Jason Hunt's interception of a Cantrell pass at the Senior 35 gave Jefferson ideal field position again. Randy Meier's 1-yard plunge capped a 7-play series with 5:26 left in the half.

Senior scored on its first possession of the second half, as Cantrell hit Tony Callahan on a 31-yard pass. The Rams threatened to strike again a few seconds later when Joe Weber recovered Randy Meier's fumble at the Jeff 18.

But the J-Hawk defense responded, giving Senior only a yard in the next six plays. Tony Gill's 34yard field goal try was short.

The 49ers sent two undisclosed future draft choices to San Diego in exchange for the 32-year-old Johnson.

GOLF — Curtis Strange and Canadian Dan Halldorson mastered the worst weather conditions the touring pros have encountered this year and slogged through rain, wind, mud and biting cold to tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the $350,000 LaJet Classic. Strange had a no-bogey, 5-under-par 67 while Halldorson put on a birdie-birdie finish for a 68 in occasional rain, with temperatures in the upper 40s, in winds gusting over 20 mph. The combination produced a wind-chill factor that ranged from 13 to 25 degrees. Strange and Halldorson each finished two trips over the 7,166 yard Forest Oaks Golf Club course in Abilene, Texas, in 135, nine under par . . . Texas bumps into Penn State today

Associated Press

One of the top early season challengers for the national collegiate football championship likely will suffer a setback today when second-ranked Texas meets No. 4 Penn State in the "neutral" surroundings of East Rutherford, N.J.

They are two of college football's glamor names but have met only once, Penn State winning 30-6 in the 1972 Cotton Bowl. This is the first of a three-game series — Penn State visits Texas in 1989, the Longhorns are at Penn State in 1990 - and 76,891-seat Giants Stadium is a sellout.

Even though New Jersey is only a four-hour drive from State College, Pa., and almost as long a flight from Austin, Texas, the Longhorns are the "home" team, thanks to a coin flip, although they have sold only 9,500 tickets compared with Penn State's 28,000.

"I'm not sure how neutral it is considering its location," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "I would have preferred Amarillo."

THE ONLY OTHER matchup of Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press poll today finds No. 13

Clemson at No. 18 Georgia Tech. Meanwhile, top-rated Nebraska visits Syracuse, third-ranked Ohio State is at Minnesota for a night game, No. 6 Washington is home against Miami of Ohio, seventhranked Oklahoma entertains Kansas State, No. 9 Florida State is home against Temple at night, and 10thranked Oklahoma State is at Tulsa for a night contest. Fifth-ranked Boston College and No. 8 Brigham Young are not scheduled.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Southern Methodist entertains Texas Christian at night, No. 12 Georgia visits South Carolina under the lights, No. 14 Michigan is at Indiana, LSU is at No. 15 Southern California, Rice visits No. 16 Miami, Fla., at night, No. 17 UCLA is at Colorado, No. 19 Notre Dame visits Missouri and Tennessee is at No. 20

Florida, in Galen Hall's debut as head coach following the dismissal of Charley Pell, entertains Mississippi State.

"It's a credit to the team that they've been able to come through the distractions like they have," Hall said. "They want to show what type of team they are."

IN THE 1972 Cotton Bowl, Akers was a Texas assistant under Darrell Royal. What he remembers is that "they (Penn State) had a couple of nice-looking backs that day" Franco Harris and Lydell Mitchell. To make Akers unhappier now, Penn State tailback D.J. Dozier returns to action this week after missing two games.

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne appears to be trying to soft-soap Syracuse, an overwhelming underdog against the Cornhuskers.

We beat them badly here (63-7 at Lincoln last year), but as I looked wasn't indicative of the game,"

Osborne said. "We had more trouble blocking Syracuse than anybody we played all year. What I'm trying to do is convince you that this isn't going to be a pushover."

Even Syracuse's 19-0 loss to Rutgers last week doesn't faze Osborne. "I'd rather be playing a team coming off a win than a loss. I think it will probably bring out the best in Syracuse," he said. LIKE NEBRASKA, a 24-point favorite in the Carrier Dome, Ohio State goes indoors at Minnesota and the Buckeyes are 27-point favorites. Minnesota already has lost to Nebraska (38-7) and Coach Lou Holtz said that "Nebraska was an excellent football team, but Ohio State might be better. It has a better running back in Keith Byars and it has a better quarterback in Mike Tomczak. I believe that Ohio State at the films I realized it was one of is one of the three best teams in the those situations where the score country and the team that will win
