

Iowa City High wins 3rd straight, downs Kennedy

By Mark Dukes
Gazette sports editor

There is a different Flynn throwing the football to Mark Lumpa this season, but the results are very similar.

Steve Flynn passed for 176 yards, threw two touchdown passes to Lumpa and ran for another score Friday night as Iowa City High downed Cedar Rapids Kennedy, 24-14, in Mississippi Valley Conference football at Kingston Stadium.

The Little Hawks raised their record to 5-2 overall and 3-2 in the Valley. City High has won three straight games after dropping two by a total of four points.

Scott Flynn, Steve's brother, was the state's top passer in Class 4A last season while Lumpa ranked No. 1 in 4A receiving with 47 catches for 917 yards. Against the Cougars, Steve completed 15 of 26 passes, including six for 83 yards to Lumpa.

Balance and ball control were beneficial to City High. The Little Hawks complemented Flynn's passing with 185 rushing yards, and totaled 73 plays to Kennedy's 41.

"The big thing was that we were able to control the ball well," City High Coach Larry Brown said. "We know if we get the ball to Mark he can catch it, but Flynn really moved the ball around well to different receivers. Steve is a smart quarterback who doesn't give up the ball."

Junior tailback Greg Brown topped City High rushers with 104 yards on 22 carries, while Flynn completed passes to seven different receivers.

"It's tough to stop the pass, as accurate as they are," said Kennedy Coach Al Stiers, whose team is 1-6 overall and 1-5 in the Valley. "I truly believed that we were much improved this time, more aggressive and determined."

Kennedy struck quickly after Blaine Shaffer's 46-yard return of the opening kickoff put the ball on City High's 33. Four plays later, Steve Burke scored off right tackle from nine yards out and Brad Pospisil kicked the extra point.

City High bounced back, driving 63 yards in 11 plays to tie the game. The score came on a fourth-and-seven pass play of 14 yards from Flynn to Lumpa.

The Little Hawks went ahead, 9-7, with 9:09 left in the half when Craig Wicks and Dave Scholz tackled Kennedy quarterback Brian Dixon in the end zone. Stiers disputed the call, contending Dixon's knee had not touched the ground.

"That safety was so important," the Cougar coach said. "It wasn't even close (to a safety)."

City High went ahead 15-7 with 2:34 left in the half on Flynn's one-yard sneak. The Little Hawks had gained possession when Kennedy sophomore punter Brett Sokol fumbled a snap in the end zone, tried to run the ball and fumbled at the Cougar two. Dave Knock recovered for City High.

"We don't blame him (Sokol) on that," Stiers said. "That was my fault."

Pospisil caught a sideline pass from Dixon in the last minute of the first half and raced 55 yards to the City High three-yard line. But two plays later, Brown intercepted a Dixon pass at the goal line.

City High scored on its first possession of the second half on a spectacular catch by Lumpa, which resulted in a 38-yard scoring play. Lumpa leaped between Kennedy defenders Pospisil and David Ernst, caught Flynn's pass at the five and backed into the end zone.

Kennedy responded with a 60-yard, 10-play drive that was capped by Dixon's one-yard run around right end. But City High sealed the win with a 23-yard field goal by Craig Foerstner on the last play of the third quarter. Kennedy didn't cross midfield in the final period.

Mustafa Hamsho lies near Marvin Hagler's towering legs after being knocked out Friday night

Hagler pounds Hamsho, keeps crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler "had so many guns, I didn't even use them all" in his 10th middleweight title defense Friday night against Mustafa Hamsho.

Hagler used more than Hamsho could handle. He knocked him down twice and stopped him in the third round and the challenger sprained his right ankle on the first knockdown.

"Everything was on the money tonight," said Hagler, who was impressive in his Madison Square Garden debut.

And the performance definitely put him on target for a big money match against Thomas Hearns, the World Boxing Council super welterweight champion, who was at ringside.

Promoter Bob Arum said the fight was near — probably March or April — and the two fighters would split $10 million, the only question being which way the split would go.

"Coming back," shouted Hagler, who in the eyes of some observers showed signs of slipping in his 15-round decision over Roberto Duran Nov. 10, 1983, and his 10th-round knockout of Juan Roldan last March 30.

"I put on more weight. This time I had the punching power," said Hagler, who weighed 159½, the same as Hamsho.

Hagler weighed 157 when he fought Duran and about the same when he fought Roldan.

The fight ended with 29 seconds left in the third round when Hagler put Hamsho down for the second time with a leaping right hand to the jaw and the challenger's manager, Al Certo, jumped into the ring before referee Arthur Mercante could start the count.

The first knockdown came from a left-right to the head and dropped Hamsho in a neutral corner.

"I twisted the right ankle after the first knockdown and after that I couldn't hold myself up," Hamsho said.

Hagler certainly didn't give Hamsho any help.

The 30-year-old champion didn't throw everything in the first round. In fact, he was having trouble finding the range and Hamsho, who was trying for the second time to beat Hagler, seemed to have an edge in the round as he scored with good lefts to the head on four or five occasions.

But Hamsho came out of that first round with a cut over his left eye, which apparently was caused by a collision of heads.

Then in the third round, the champion ended the battle of left-handers, eight rounds earlier than he had finished Hamsho in their first meeting Oct. 3, 1981.

Early in the third round, Mercante warned Hamsho for butting. Hagler then landed a good right and left and then a hard right. Suddenly, with 1:25 left in the round, Hagler connected with a left-right that dropped Hamsho on the seat of his pants in a neutral corner.

The challenger, a native of Syria who is a U.S. citizen living in New York, struggled up and tried to fight back. But he was fighting on wobbly legs.

Then, after Hagler was warned by Mercante for pushing Hamsho away, Hagler leaped in with a right to the jaw that dropped the challenger and brought his manager into the ring.

The impressive victory for Hagler over the No. 1-ranked contender by both the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council came before an estimated crowd of 12,000 at the Garden and followed Mike McCallum's one-sided 15-round decision over Sean Mannion for the WBA junior middleweight championship, which had been vacant.

USFL confirms switch in 1986

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — United States Football League owners reaffirmed Friday their decision to switch from the spring to the fall in 1986, taking on the established National Football League head-on.

Despite reports that the owners might reconsider their vote here, the matter never came up during a full day of meetings, closing the matter as far as the league is concerned. That led to one immediate ramification — the USFL champion Philadelphia Stars will make their announced move to Maryland in the spring of 1985, probably playing in College Park, Md., before moving to Memorial Stadium in Baltimore in 1986 when the fall schedule begins.

"That's the path we're taking, that's the road we're going down," said Commissioner Chet Simmons.

Beck sets mark at Disney golf

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Chip Beck, a frequent challenger but not yet a winner on the PGA Tour, set a tournament scoring record as he moved out to a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Walt Disney World Golf Classic.

Beck, 28, completing his sixth season as a touring pro, added a 6-under-par 66 to his opening 64 and set the tournament record for 36 holes at 130, a distant 14 strokes under par at the tournament's halfway point.

"I'm just going to play and enjoy it and hope things go my way," said Beck, who was a runner-up three times last year and this season led through the first three rounds of the Westchester Classic.

"If I get a chance to win, on the last day, on the last nine holes, I think I can win," Beck said.

ESPN's Paul Maguire: The man behind the mike

By Jim Ecker

Gazette assistant sports editor

Doug Flutie will win the Heisman Trophy, Tracy Henderson is the nation's top receiver, and the Washington Huskies could be headed for the national championship.

Who says so? Paul Maguire. And there's more. It's time for a national playoff, there are too many officials on the field, Al Davis is a prince, and there are not too many games on TV.

Want some more? Then turn on ESPN tonight at 6:30. You'll hear Maguire work as the color commentator with Jim Simpson for Iowa State's game against Oklahoma at Cyclone Stadium.

Although Maguire doesn't lack for opinions, he's not ESPN's answer to Howard Cosell. His style is comfortable, humorous and intelligent.

The man spent 11 years playing pro football, he worked nine years as an analyst on NBC, and he's been with ESPN for 4½ years. He does USFL and college games for the cable network.

Why Flutie for the Heisman Trophy? He's a star, he's a senior, he's got the numbers, and he's playing for a winner.

"There are no hopefuls," says Maguire. "There's only one — it's Flutie. I picked him five weeks ago."

"The only thing that would prevent him from winning the Heisman is if he gets hurt. Then it would be Keith Byars (of Ohio State)."

Also high on Maguire's list (not for the Heisman) is Henderson, Iowa State's All-American receiver. And Maguire knows something about receivers, having led the nation in TD catches as a senior at the Citadel. "It comes along every 10 years when you see a receiver like Henderson," says Maguire. "He's unique. Special."

"He's a hard worker. He does his job. He's a learner. The amazing thing we learned here (in Ames) is that Tracy was brought in as a defensive back! "I think right now he's the best in the country."

How about that national championship? Why Washington?

"Because they play in the Pac-10, and there aren't that many good teams out there," he says. "With their schedule, they may be the team."

Maguire would like to see a two-team playoff for the national crown, with coaches — not sportswriters — picking the contestants.

"This year might be the ideal time," he says. But, "We know it's not going to happen."

Maguire does not favor the use of instant replays to help officials, but he does have a suggestion. He'd cut the officiating crew from seven men to five.

"Everybody thinks he has to throw a flag or he's not doing his job. They should have a special prize for the official who throws the fewest flags. At the end of the season he should get $10,000."

Maguire's relationship with Al Davis, the controversial owner of the Los Angeles Raiders, goes back 30 years, when Davis recruited Maguire for the Citadel in 1955.

"I like to tell people Al Davis lied to me before he lied to anyone else," he cracks.

In 1959, Maguire began his pro career with the L.A. Chargers in the American Football League, and shortly after Davis joined the club as a coach.

"I think he's one of the finest guys I ever met," says Maguire. "Al has never forgotten his friends. He takes care of his people. You can see it in the way the Raiders play. They believe in him."

"People think he's a B.S.'er. I'll tell you this — he's never let anybody down. I think the world of him."

Maguire applauds the proliferation of college football on TV this year. He says players and teams now get the exposure they crave, and viewers have a choice.

But he issues a warning to football-addicted spouses: "This might be a banner year for divorces in the country."

About tonight's game, Maguire admits it looks like a mismatch, but sees some hope for ISU.

"The games that you always think are going to be total blowouts . . . when you put it on national TV, something happens. The players act differently."

He thinks Oklahoma's 15-15 deadlock with Texas might help the Cyclones.

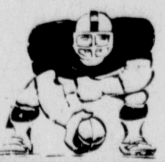

"When you catch a team coming off an emotional tie, sometimes you can jump out on them early while they're still thinking about last week."

Maguire, 46, finished his pro career with the Buffalo Bills in 1970, and recently was named to the Bills' silver anniversary team as the punter. He did regional games for NBC during the '70s, but was let go after nine years.

"In pro ball, there's a saying that if you last long enough you'll either be traded or released. In TV," says Maguire, "they tell you they're going to make a change. Which means go find another job."

He did.
