3 racers grab season titles

Gazette sportswriter Brad Loney, Steve Stinger and Max Corporon wrapped up season championships Friday night at Hawkeye Downs Speedway.

Loney finished second in the Late Model feature to preserve his lead. Stinger, the leader coming in, won the Modified feature. And Corporon also held on to his lead with a victory in the Hobby Stock division.

Pro Stock racer Bob Hodges had already clinched the title in his division and was not hurt by a second-place finish behind Jonn Strausser.

The Late Model race came down to a battle of old buddies, but Johnny Spaw of Cedar Rapids won Friday's battle to slip into second for the season.

"We've grown up together and really like racing each other," Spaw said. "I'm real happy for with my season. We won six features and this was our first time building this kind of car. "Brad and I are buddies and

"We've had our ups and downs," Loney said. "Curt (Tillman) has been hard to stay ahead of this season.'

I'm glad to see him win if I can't."

Tillman came into Friday's action in second place, but finished out of the top five and dropped in the final season stand-

"I learned a lot last season," Corporon said. "I learned a lot about setting up my car and staying out of trouble. And I learned to stay cool out there."

Germany's Michael Stich reacts after beating American MaliVai Washington Friday at the U.S. Open in New York. Stich won in five sets.

Stich beats elements, Washington at Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Wimbledon champion Michael Stich crumpled in a sopping heap in the courtside flower bed at the U.S. Open on Friday and looked ready for burial.

The searing sun beat down on his bare head and the 120-degree court burned through his sneakers. A soaked handkerchief drooped around his neck Across the net, MaliVai Washington was doing deep knee bends after breaking Stich's serve to win the fourth set and tie the third-round match.

Stich, unfazed by Wimbledon's floods but bent double by New York's heat and humidity, pulled himself slowly out of the flowers, ambled over to the baseline, then did what all champions nust. From some inner reserve, ne his serve going hotter than the weather, resumed his dogged net attack, struck a few blazing forehands and won 5-7, 7-5, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 in 31/2 hours of sheer torture.

Then, almost unbelievably, he went out to play doubles three hours later, against the doctor's orders, after pumping himself up with fluids and getting his legs iced and massaged.

"I was tired and everything was hurting," Stich said of the Washington match after winning the doubles. "It was a strange match. I didn't feel too good all the time. In the end, maybe he was getting mentally tired. I figured whoever made the first break in the fifth set was going to win the match."

Stich, who began the match with Washington about 12:30 p.m., finally finished his day of tennis at 8:45 p.m. after teaming with Udo Riglewski to beat Neil Borwick and Simon Youl, 7-6

"It's always important to prove to people who said I couldn't play because didn't have the best preparation before the tournament," said the No. 3seeded Stich, who took a break after Wimbledon to play German league tennis. "The best way is to win in five sets and four hours. It is a good feeling.'

It was a day of grueling marathons and upsets.

In another 31/2-hour duel, most of it fortunately in the shade of the grandstand, Derrick Rostagno won an unusual four-tiebreak match, 6-7 (2-7), 7-6 (7-3), 7-6 (7-2), 7-6 (7-4) against Jakob

No. 2 seed Stefan Edberg was stretched to nearly three hours by before winning, 7-6 (10-8), 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. No. 5 Ivan Lendl also took about three hours to beat Todd Woodbridge, 3-6, 6-3, Women's No. 5 seed Mary Joe Fernandez, a semifinalist last year, fell 6-1, 6-2 to Radka Zrubakova, a 20-year-old from Czechoslovakia. No. 11 Katerina Maleeva lost 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 to Regina Rajchrtova, another Czech. Jo Durie beat No. 15 Helena Sukova, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1.

Four other women's seeds had a much easier time. No. 2 Monica Seles needed just 49 minutes to beat Sara Gomer, 6-1, 6-4; No. 3 Gabriela Sabatini beat Gretchen Magers, 6-3, 6-4; No. 7 Jennifer Capriati beat Patricia Hy, 6-1, 6-4; and No. 9 Jana Novotna beat Dominique Monami, 6-1, 6-2.

Seles said she has a cold, congestion and foot blisters from the burning

"I've never had so many blisters as from this tournament," Seles said. "The heat is very tough."

Switzer denied phone records

Tipton, IA

DALLAS (AP) - A state district judge has refused to turn over Dallas Times Herald telephone records to former University of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer and other defendants in a libel lawsuit filed by a former Times Herald reporter.

State District Judge Gary Hall rejected Thursday a motion to subpoena the records. Hall ruled the records were privileged and not relevant to the lawsuit filed by former Times Herald reporter Jack Taylor. Attorneys for Switzer, the co-former Sooners coach's book "Bootlegger's Boy," wanted the records for their defense. In the book, Taylor is mentioned in a scheme to plant drugs author and the publisher of the on an Oklahoma football player, identified only as Big Red, after the 1988 Orange Bowl. Taylor filed the suit in September 1990, claiming invasion of privacy, libel, slander, defamation and loss of consortium.

THE TIMES Herald is not a party to the suit. Taylor resigned from the Times Herald in January and now works for the Los Angeles Daily News.

Hall reviewed records of calls from five telephone extensions at the Times Herald for the month of January 1988. Defense attorney James George submitted the phone number of the Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics to the court. George said Taylor or another Times Herald reporter may have called the bureau as part of the reported scheme.

Hall said the number was not in the records and quashed the subpoena.
