0-1 requires some healing

alf the high school football teams in Eastern Iowa take the field tonight with 0-1 records.

On the heels of two weeks of practice following several months of anticipation, a first-game defeat is a jolt.

Alburnett lost its opener last Friday night at home to Maquoketa Valley, 22-0. Many of the Pirates looked anguished and confused as Coach Jim Carver spoke to them at midfield after the contest.

The fact that Maquoketa Valley is a Class 2A team and Alburnett is a 1A meant little to the Pirate players. You begin a new season with a new start, and suddenly you're 0-1.

That's a lousy feeling. It's something that puts coaches to work.

'We feel we can talk to our kids and tell them the season's not over after the first ballgame," Carver said.

The trouble is, Alburnett visits another 2A squad tonight in Central City-Springville. The Catbirds appear to have a pretty talented team this fall.

There just aren't any 1A teams we can play that are close to us," Carver this season 0-2 and

Alburnett coach "I'm in my 31st year of coaching (18 at Alburnett),' Carver said, "and every year the first ballgame seems to be such a big factor.

"I think when you lose your opener, kids are disappointed because they've lost the opportunity to go 9-0 in the regular season. I think that's what they're thinking about.'

During last week's post-game discussion, Carver instructed his players not to point fingers at others but to look to themselves for answers and improvement. He then sent them off to a party at one of the players' homes.

"We don't do things on the weekend with the team." he said. "We like to wait until Monday when they're back in school, to give them the weekend and a full day at school with their friends."

Alburnett was 3-6 last year, but has a fairly experienced team this season and may do some good things in district play. The Pirates probably won't see as dangerous a passing game as it faced against Maquoketa Valley.

Getting enough boys to come out for football is a headache at some small schools, but not at Alburnett.

"We have 200 kids in our high school and 55 are out for football," Carver said. 'We really try to work at that. Some kids may not be very good football players, but we try to give them that experience. I feel kind of sad for those kids who don't try it.

"I love high school football. I think there are so many opportunities for kids to learn things while they're playing that are so closely related to things they'll use the rest of their lives. For instance, you have a set of rules you have to live by. If you follow them, things will turn out positively. If you break the rules, there will be negative consequences. That's the same thing as in Carver said some years his best player might be an offensive lineman who will never get his name in the newspaper for his good play. He said that also is a life lesson, presumably that recognition comes and goes but the satisfaction from doing something well lasts.

'We'll get there, we'll get there," Carver told his players after last week's game. "We got away from our game plan because we fell behind, and we panicked. But it'll work. It'll work."

DNR census nets nice trout in less than classic water

But Moeller, Northeast Iowa District fisheries supervisor for the Department of Natural Resources, is not quite as keen on stream aesthetics as he is on big trout. And, as a DNR fish census confirmed Saturday, Ensign Hollow has plenty of them.

DNR fisheries workers, aided by members of the Hawkeye Fly Fishing Association, counted 146 brown and rainbow trout in a 3/4-mile stretch of the creek.

The first pool surveyed yielded a 21-inch brown that weighed 3.95 pounds. Moeller was not surprised. He said the same fish measured 20 inches last year when he caught it during one of his

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Despite an intermittent drizzle that chilled his achy spine, Dave Rummells shot a 7-under-par 64 Thursday and was tied with Charlie Rymer for the first-round lead at the CVS Charity Classic.

Playing in his sixth PGA Tour event since taking five months off for back treatment, Rummells made seven birdies. Rymer, who started on the back nine, parred his first seven holes before birdieing six of the next seven, then pulled even with Rummells with a birdie on No. 8

Tulsa quarterback John Fitzgerald remembers the scene at Skelly Stadium last year after the Golden Hurricane stunned Iowa, 27-20, on a balmy Saturday night in Oklahoma.

The 19th-ranked Hawkeyes were heavy favorites, but Iowa was outplayed and outmaneuvered before 27,788 fans in the first appearance by a Big Ten team in Tulsa.

Twins' Molitor weighing options

■ MINNEAPOLIS — Paul Molitor, a member of baseball's 3,000-hit club, is considering joining a new team next season if he's not happy with the Minnesota Twins' direction in 1998.

The Twins star has met twice in recent weeks with team owner Carl Pohlad to talk about his future. Pohlad has tried to make sure that Molitor, 41, stays with the organization in some capacity.

Molitor has three options: activate his option to play one more year with the Twins for $2.75 million; retire; or become a free agent and sign with another team.

If Molitor doesn't retire, he said he will look at the Twins' efforts to improve and Tom Kelly's willingness to return as the team's manager before deciding whether to sign elsewhere.

"I think it's important at this time to allow yourself to keep all of your opportunities available to you," Molitor told the Star Tribune.

Orioles' Davis eyes return

■ BALTIMORE — Eric Davis, who underwent colon cancer surgery in June, plans to play in a game for the first time in nearly four months during the Baltimore Orioles' current homestand.

"It's going to be legendary," Davis said with a huge smile crossing his face. "As good as our fans have been during the whole ordeal, they deserve to see it first-hand and not on the ESPN highlights.

Davis, 35, had a baseball-sized tumor removed from his colon June 13. The outfielder has since undergone seven two-hour chemotherapy treatments, the worst part being "there are no good movies to watch while I'm taking it."

De La Hoya thinking big

LAS VEGAS — Oscar De La Hoya doesn't just want to beat Hector "Macho" Camacho.

"My goal is to become the first man to knock him out," said De La Hoya, who will defend the WBC welterweight title Saturday

The unbeaten De La Hoya has had to go the distance only four times in 25 fights. He, however, has failed to knock out opponents twice in his last three fights — against Miguel Angel Gonzalez in defense of the WBC super lightweight title Jan. 18 and against Pernell Whitaker when he won the welterweight title April 12. In his last fight June 14, De La Hoya knocked out David

Indy cuts qualifying

INDIANAPOLIS — Practice and qualifying for the Indianapolis 500 will be halved starting next year, a major break in tradition as the Indianapolis Motor Speedway competes for race fans' money and attention.

Speedway president Tony George said the change was not intended to lure back the top teams and drivers from the rival Championship Auto Racing Teams series. Instead, he said, it was a move he had been considering for several years.

Burton looking to move up

■ LOUDON, N.H. — Jeff Burton is tired of running second, and Sunday's CMT 300 at New Hampshire International Speedway might be just what he needs to move up one more spot.

Burton, who won the Jiffy Lube 300 on the one-mile oval in July, has been a runner-up in the last two races — finishing behind Jeff Gordon in the Southern 500 at Darlington and second to Dale Jarrett in last week's Exide 400 at Richmond.

Now, Burton, who has burst into Winston Cup stardom this season, will be going after his first season sweep at a race track.

"I'm really kind of surprised," Jelinek said. "We knew we had an explosive team and a good defensive team, but our kids were here ready to play right from the outset. The tone was set in that first quarter and everything after that kind of fell into place for us.'

Sanderson (5-10, 161) missed most of the City High game with leg cramps, but was unstoppable

"I was drinking a lot of water all week, because I just got dehydrated against City High," said Sanderson, who carried the ball 20 times and rattled off rushes of 23, 15, 15, 16, 42 and 19 yards. 'All I had to do was run tonight because the holes
