Bonds at all-time high

70th HR catches McGwire

OUSTON (AP) — Barry Bonds took all the frustration bottled up inside him and sent No. 70 into the upper deck in right field.

With one big swing Thursday night, Bonds tied Mark McGwire's home run record a feat even Big Mac thought might last a lifetime when he did it a mere three years ago.

"It was electrifying," Bonds

After watching Houston pitchers work around him throughout the three-game series, Bonds finally got a chance to hit, leading off the ninth inning. He did not miss, hitting a 454-foot shot off rookie Wilfredo Rodriguez.

"I was happy I made contact. It's hard to just take pitches all the time," he said. "You really don't have an opportunity to swing."

Bonds immediately raised both arms in the air and began a slow trot around the bases. The record crowd of 43,734, which had booed when Astros pitchers walked him, rewarded him with a standing ovation.

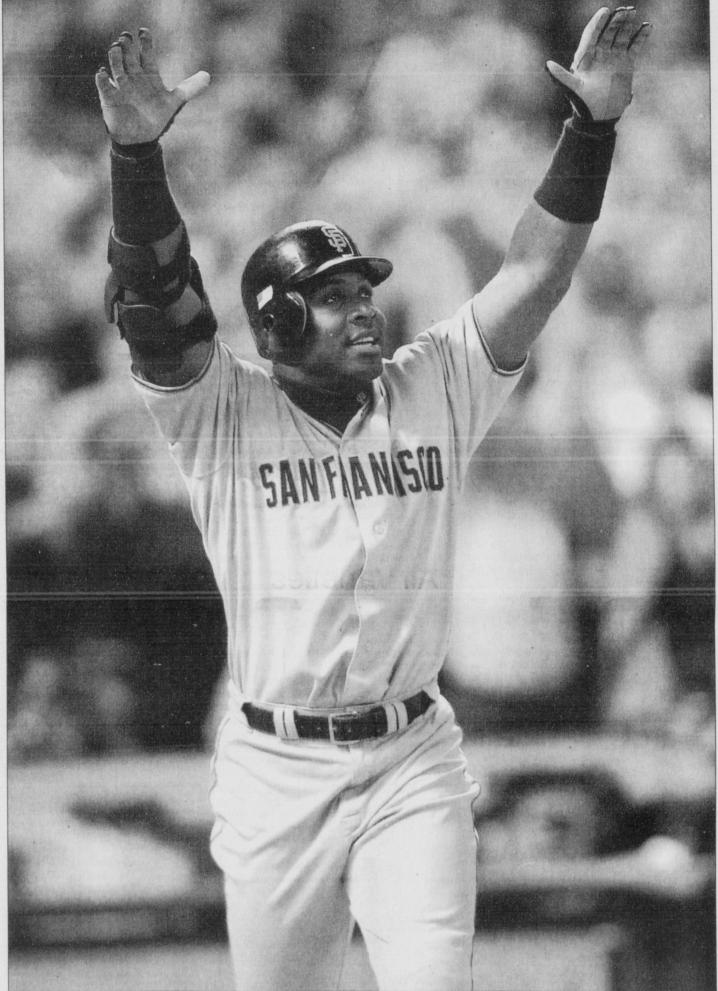

The Giants won 10-2, completing a sweep that kept them two games behind Arizona in

So what? He's a hero to the aloof and antisocial, an evergrowing segment of the population that deserves to be rep-

Another part of the toneddown reactions to Bonds going for 70 homers and beyond is that the long balls have become as about as meaningless as Carrot Top's views on stem cell research.

Homers were once pleasant surprises, hoped for but seldom expected. When a guy hit 35 homers, he had a fantastic slugging season. When a guy hit 45, he was King Kong. It was a huge deal when George Foster of Cincinnati socked 52 in 1977. Or so my ancestors

Hank Aaron never hit 50 home runs. Neither did Reggie Jackson. Or Joe DiMaggio or Ted Williams or Harmon Killebrew or Ernie Banks or Mike Schmidt.

Roger Maris' 61 homers in 1961 meant something because it was a mythic total that replaced Babe Ruth's mythical total of 60. That was when a homer was a homer, sonny

Now baseball is a game of too many teams and not enough pitchers, microscopic strike zones, hitters who have combined modern weighttraining with modern chemicals, and stadiums built for homers instead of actual baseball. Speaking of Milwaukee, the Brewers represent how warped the National League game has become. The NL used to be the home of speed and defense, of stealing bases, of stretching singles into doubles and sliding hard into second base to bust up double

Now it's the home of a bunch of guys who look like football players swinging for the fences on 0-2 counts.

The Brewers have pulled off a pair of ignominious feats this year. They have already set the major-league mark for strikeouts in a season with

They also will become the first team in major-league history to have more strikeouts than hits.

But they've hit 208 homers. Seattle did a wild and crazy thing. It built a ballpark that put premiums on defense and pitching. So the Mariners went into their game Thursday night at Anaheim with a ridiculously successful 113-45

The Mariners lead the American League in batting average, stolen bases and earned-run average and are second in walks. They score as many runs as anyone, and they also win. The money they didn't pay Randy John-

Prairie wallops Kennedy

By Jeff Johnson

CEDAR RAPIDS might be able to debate how good Cedar Rapids Prairie's football team is. Emphasis on the word might.

But there is absolutely no possible way you can question the resiliency of the Hawks.

Just look at the way Prairie was able to rebound Thursday night from a morale-busting, last-second loss for the second time this season. A nearly flawless overall performance was more than enough for an eyebrow-raising 44-0 shellacking of Cedar Rapids Kennedy at Kingston Stadium.

The spread was surprising because Kennedy (4-2) came in with a four-game winning streak.

"We raise tough kids out there," said Prairie Coach Craig Jelinek. "Both physically and mentally. They've been stung twice, but they are a very resilient group. They believe in the coaching staff, and the coaching staff believes in

You could certainly excuse players and coaching staff if there was a lack of said belief.

Prairie (4-2) lost to Dubuque Hempstead last week on the last play of the game. Four weeks ago, the Hawks lost to Cedar Rapids Xavier in the final minute of the game.

So this team is roughly 30some seconds and five points away from being unbeaten.

"We have only three returning starters from last year, but we're two plays away from being 6-0," Jelinek said. "But you don't dwell on that. You just can't."

"We knew we should have won last week," added Prairie fullback-linebacker Casey Clark, who had a pair of touchdowns — one running and one receiving. "So we wanted to come out tonight like it was another quarter against Hempstead. We were all very mad that we lost. We wanted to come out and really put it to (Kennedy)."

Which you can safely say the Hawks did.

Prairie scored 31 first-half points, 21 in the second quarter. And the blitzkrieg began on just the second play of the game, when Hawk quarterback Tom Langhurst connected with running back Jason Kohl on an 80-yard catch-and-run touchdown.

A 30-yard field goal by Chris Krueger made it 10-0. Then Langhurst threw two more TD

Stockdale loves to figure out foes' game plan

Most of the time, he already knows what's coming

By John Riehl

Gazette sportswriter IOWA CITY — Iowa senior Matt Stockdale isn't a guy who will beat his head into a wall to get psyched up for a football

He's much more mild-mannered than that in the Hawkeye locker room prior to kickoff. He leaves the emotional stuff to guys like teammate Jerry Montgomery.

"Montgomery will jump vou," Stockdale said.

Iowa's starting left cornerback, Stockdale gets excited by having the confidence of knowing the opposing offense inside and out.

"That's the thing that gets me most jacked up, if I know every single formation and I have a good idea of what they're going to run," Stockdale said. "I figure they can't do anything.

So it's just a matter of putting the hours of film study to use by executing the gameplan on the

And once the whistle blows, Stockdale's aggressive side comes out.

Make no mistake, the 5-foot-10, 188-pound Iowa Falls native is a hitter, though not in the same class as Hawkeye hitman Bob Sanders, the team's strong

"I think once you get on the football field, you have to turn a rage on and you just have that attitude that you're going to hit somebody as hard as you can," Stockdale said. "And we have guys in the secondary who are going to do that day in and day out. That's been passed on to me.

That's not the only thing that's been passed on to him. John Derby, a Hawkeye linebacker from 1988-91, has preached preparation to Stock-

"That gave me a huge advantage because I was not the biggest or strongest guy out there," Derby said. "He's so interested in studying films that he's a step ahead of what's going on. That's something that comes from a lot of confi-

Derby talks football and business with Stockdale daily.

Stockdale is doing an internship with Medtronic Sofamor Danek Surgical Sales, a company based in Memphis, Tenn., that delivers state-of-the-art products and services to spinal and cranial surgeons. Derby, who lives in Coralville, is a sales associate with the firm.

"He's told me about how you have to get yourself so jacked up and so prepared to play, so you can go up to every single player and say you're going to dominate him," Stockdale said.

Derby, a first team all-Big Ten pick in 1991, is very impressed with the 23-year-old Stockdale.

"He's exactly 10 years younger than me, so it's fun to see his energy as he gets ahead in life," Derby said. "If I was in his shoes, it would be awesome. He's so far ahead of the kids coming out now. He'll probably end up with a position in the company when he's all done with football.

"And he's playing pretty good football right now. You can say that again.

Stockdale, in and out of the starting lineup his first three years, is making the most out of his senior season.

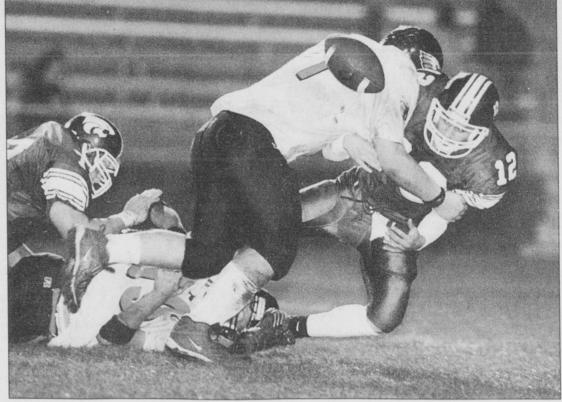

He has 10 unassisted tackles and a team-high six pass deflections in three games.

"Everybody is looking for Stockdale to make big plays and he's made every big play we've needed him to make so far," right cornerback Benny Sapp said.

For Stockdale, it comes down to not blowing a huge opportunity to make Iowa a winner again after three consecutive losing seasons.

"I've always been one to be fully committed to whatever I get into," Stockdale said. "If I were not able to go out with a smile on my face after my senior year, that would be just a huge disappointment.'

Bowlsby: Everyone will absorb budget cut

By John Riehl Gazette sportswriter

IOWA CITY — University of Iowa Athletics Director Bob Bowlsby said Thursday that his department's cutbacks in the university's attempt to slash a possible $22 million in spending must be absorbed programwide.

UI President Mary Sue Coleman is expected to announce, later this month, specific plans for cutting the university's bud-

Faced with declining state revenues, Gov. Tom Vilsack has recommended the Legislature approve $108 million in cuts, with half to come from the state's three public universities. Final decisions on the cuts will come when the Legislature convenes in January.

"I don't know that I can speculate on what we'll be called upon to provide in the way of reversion," Bowlsby said. "But I think we'll have to absorb it programwide.

Athletics is receiving $2,352,526 from the UI's general fund in Fiscal Year 2002.

Bowlsby said the money is earmarked for the women's soccer and rowing programs, women's scholarships and women's salaries. The men's programs don't receive any institutional support.

But those same women's programs will not absorb the cutbacks by themselves.

"We wouldn't expect those people to bear the brunt of the Bowlsby said

"I wouldn't speculate on exactly how we would come up with the reductions, but it isn't going to come back out of where it went. It would be devastating to those programs."

BOYS' Alexander killed in ARCA race

25-year-old ARCA driver who also competed on NASCAR's Busch Series, was killed Thursday night in a wreck at Lowe's Motor Speedway.

Alexander had just passed Kerry Earnhardt for the lead with four laps to go in the EasyCare 100 when his car pulled in too close in front of sending both cars into a spin coming out of Turn 4. Alexander's car, already running close to the outside wall, cut right and the Pontiac slammed into the concrete at an almost headfirst angle. His car then hit Earnhardt's again, flipping it and sending Earnhardt's Chevrolet hurtling down the track on its roof with flames shooting out from under the hood.

Earnhardt's after the pass. Earnhardt caught Alexander's rear bumper,

Spun after clipping Earnhardt

Alexander's car came to a rest on the infield grass. The 1996 ARCA rookie of the year had to be cut out of the car, was placed on a stretcher and rushed to the infield car center. He was pronounced dead from severe head injuries at 10:20 p.m.

"It was a severe head injury," track spokesman Jerry Gappens said. "Our emergency technicians went to the car and found him unconscious, unresponsive, no vital signs." Alexander's father, Blaise Sr., and brother were in the pits at the time of the accident.
