The Mustangs' deepest penetration was the Solon 11, early in the fourth quarter. But Gaffney stuffed Brian Hess for a 5-yard loss on the next play, and an incompletion on fourth down ended the drive.

"When you play Mount Vernon's wishbone (offense), it forces you to play smart a 20-yard touchdown pass

Mount Vernon's Jacob Craig led all rushers with 91 yards on 21 carries.

Hempstead quarterback Brian Putnam threw touchdown passes of 45, 54 and 31 yards in leading the Mustangs to a 29-14 win over the Cougars in a Mississippi Valley Conference opener at Dalzell Field.

Putnam passed for 208 vards.

"From what they did to us last year in studying their tape, they did some things differently," Kennedy Coach Tim Lewis said. "They did some things with their tight end, we were reading him.

'That was just great coaching on their part. I credit coach (Mark) Ehlers for a great game plan. They caught We werent ready for that."

Kennedy, Lewis said, simply made too many mistakes.

'A lot of our kids went out (Thursday) and we let them watch the first half of the game out at Kingston (between Washington and Prairie) and that was one thing we talked about today was how Prairie shot themselves in the foot," Lewis said.

Mark Patterson passed for 157 yards for the Cougars, hitting Blake Fisher with touchdown passes for 49 and 15 yards.

"I'm proud of our kids for bouncing back (in the third quarter), they could have easily folded up the tents," Lewis said. "We're going to lack size speed and strength, but we're going to have heart and they showed that.'

Maher caught six passes for 61 yards. Nick Appleby led the Saints in rushing with 13 rushes for 88 yards, including 45-yard scamper in the fourth quarter.

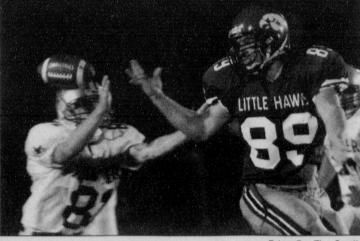

City High switched quarterbacks after Maher's touchdown, and Ryan Kennedy systematically led the Little Hawks on an 80-yard scoring drive. Kennedy found Tony Sturgell for a 25-yard score to cap the drive. Kennedy was 4

Worthy, Parish set for Hall of Fame

- Entering the Hall of Fame together didn't end the rivalry between Robert Parish and James Worthy, stars of the 1980s showdowns between the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers.

"Robert," Worthy said Friday night, "I think I still owe you a couple of elbows.

Parish, known for his stoic on-court demeanor, actually smiled at the remark. And he poked fun at himself in his acceptance speech.

"You might not believe this, but I hated basketball" as a 6-foot-6 seventh-grader in Shreveport, La. "I couldn't catch it. I couldn't hold it. I couldn't pass it. I couldn't shoot it."

He credited his junior high school coach, Coleman Kidd, with seeing "something in me that I didn't see in myself.'

By the time he joined the Boston Celtics in 1980, there was no doubt about his talent. Worthy's skills were equally evident at North Carolina and as the top pick in the 1982 draft by the Lakers.

Parish and Worthy joined five other new members for the induction ceremony Meadowlark Lemon of the Harlem Globetrotters, NBA pioneer Earl Lloyd, longtime success and all six are among

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) Louisiana Tech women's coach Leon Barmore, Italian player Dino Meneghin and the late Chick Hearn, who broadcast 3,338 straight Lakers' games.

Like Parish, Worthy was a reluctant basketball player.

"I just hated the sport" as a youngster, he said. But he played so he could get a scholarship and help his parents, who were supporting his two older brothers in col-

"That was the only reason I wanted to play basketball,' Worthy said.

As their careers progressed, there were other reasons to play. One was the desire for a championship. Parish won three with the Celtics, Worthy won three with the Lakbut both played third fiddle on their teams.

Parish was just one part of "The Big Three" of the Boston Celtics with Larry Bird and Kevin McHale. Worthy had a supporting role in "Showtime" with the Los Angeles Lakers with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson.

The others drew more headlines and honors, but Parish and Worthy played huge roles in their teams' the NBA's top 50 players of all time.

'I'm very honored to be going in with James," Parish said before the induction ceremony. "I always felt like James was the X factor on that Lakers team. As good as Magic and Kareem were, I always felt that James made the difference.

Parish played with little exhis punch that pression struck Detroit's Bill Laimbeer after a tussle under the basket in the 1987 playoffs was a rare display of emotion and didn't have the allaround flair of Bird or the inside moves of McHale.

But Worthy admired him. "There's always one opponent on the opposing team that you like, and Robert was the guy that I really liked among the Celtics," Worthy Hearn watched all their matchups.

"He would have loved to have been here but probably he's up there watching us,' said Marge Hearn, his widow.

Hearn didn't miss a game from Nov. 21, 1965, through Dec. 16, 2001 and died on Aug. 5, 2002 at age 85 after a fall at his home. He left an indelible mark on the game, giving Worthy the nickname "Big vocabulary and was a part of Parish's and Worthy's games. "For me to be going in with James, I'm very proud," Parish said.

Game James" and coining the term "slam dunk. It became part of the NBA's

At age 50, Parish remains slim, carrying himself with a straight back and deliberate strides. He played until a few months before his 44th birthday, finishing his 21-year career in 1996-97 as a part-time player with Chicago.

"I did a lot of stretching and meditation," Parish said. "It kept me in the game."

The start of his NBA career didn't indicate it would be a long one. He spent four seasons with Golden State and said he was ready to quit before going to Boston. The teams also exchanged firstround draft picks and the Celtics used theirs to take McHale.

"I was very unhappy with the Warriors," Parish said. "If I had not been traded I would not be here today.

He was part of Boston's last three championship teams, in 1981, 1984 and 1986 and finished with a 14.6-point average. He holds NBA records with 21 seasons and 1,611 games.
